

Jason Kort, Pat O'Halloran, Dave Gramkow
Sunlight Saunas
14119 Marshall Drive
Lenexa, KS 66215

December 8, 2005

Re: Armana 3 Sauna purchase

Gentlemen:

A quick note to let you know how pleased I am with this Sauna purchase.

As an Architect, I specify millions of dollars of building components. For residential applications, I like to "try it first". My wife used to have Multiple Chemical Sensitivities (MCS) and we built-in a space for a future, "standard" dry heat sauna. When she learned about Infrared Saunas, she felt that would be a better detoxifying treatment for her condition.

As you know, there are numerous Infrared sauna companies out there. Some were cheaper. However, after doing significant research, we felt your heating system elements were far superior. The unit size also fit within our pre-built sauna room, albeit, not as big. Since this was going in an existing room with little clearance, I was concerned about accessing the assembly easily. I was pleasantly surprised that no tools were needed! It was incredibly simple to assemble. I was impressed! Magnets connections. Great idea.

Anyway, my wife reports that it is working as advertised, and she has already started "detoxifying". Much to my surprise, she even likes the subtle basswood smell. (It's also a great "warm-up" in the winter. It is installed off our master bath, so it is easy to take a shower right away, too.)

I am pleased with your product and I would not hesitate to recommend it to someone. A bigger one would nice for some of my projects, however! Maybe a custom option? Appreciate the customer service from all of you, also. Do not hesitate to call if any questions.

Sincerely,

David E. Christensen AIA, LEED AP
Architect and Planner
DC/jc

PS: The stereo works well now, after your advice, Pat. One more idea; install a small, wooden strip along bottom of back supports so they fit between the seat support slots. That way it won't keep sliding around!